Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

At the urging of Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom an organization of the nation's top agriculture officials is asking Congress to "make clear it's intention to support America's agricultural growers and producers."

In a letter to members of Congress, the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA) recommends that funds in the budget be earmarked "to provide assistance to farmers equal to the total of last year's economic emergency assistance, including AMTA and Emergency Market Loss Assistance payments." Agricultural Market Transition Act, or AMTA, payments were built into the 1996 Farm Bill and are targeted to farmers through 2002. Last year, in addition to the annual AMTA payment, farmers received a supplemental AMTA payment and disaster payments as well.

During a NASDA mid-year meeting in Washington, D.C., Odom spearheaded the push to write Congress asking for support for America's farmers and ranchers. "I went to Washington knowing we had to do something for the farmers and we had to act fast," Odom says. "We are asking Congress to make this commitment to the farmers within 60 days."

Odom cites the upcoming planting season as the reason why he asked for immediate support. "Farmers are already looking for financing for this year's crop and they need these additional payments to assure the lender that they can cash flow," he says.

With prices expected to remain low this year because of a build up of global supply, Odom and other NASDA members believe the only way for farmers to survive is through government payments. "The sad reality remains that government assistance will, once again, mean the difference between remaining in farming or going out of business," the letter states.

Odom says low prices will be compounded this year by rising costs for energy, fertilizer and general operations. "Farmers are facing a dismal outlook in 2001, but we're going to keep fighting on their behalf," Odom vows.

"I was elected by the people to look out for the best interests of our Louisiana farmers, and I promise to continue doing that. People have to realize that family farms are the backbone of Louisiana and the nation. We just can't function without them."

ATTENTION COMMERCIAL FRUIT & VEGETABLE GROWERS

Sign-up is underway for production losses on commercial fruit and vegetable crops at local Farm Service Agency offices statewide. Because the USDA is still working on the quality adjustments, that part of the program has not started a sign-up process yet.

Experts predict Cocodrie rice variety to be dominante in 2001 crop

LSU AgCenter rice experts predict the dominant rice variety for 2001 probably will be Cocodrie - one of the newest varieties released by AgCenter researchers. "This variety has demonstrated high yields," said Dr. Steve Linscombe of the LSU AgCenter's Rice Research Station in Crowley. "And we believe it will continue doing so."

Linscombe was one of several LSU AgCenter researchers who spoke at the 2001 Annual Northeast Louisiana Rice Forum Feb. 20 in Rayville. He said Cocodrie has shown a three-year yield average of 7,874 pounds per acre in statewide commercial variety trials. Although Cocodrie is a high-yielding variety, Linscombe said there have been some problems with this variety in the milling process. "It started when the weather cooled," he said. "We're finding it's a little difficult to get the bran off. We don't know exactly what's going on, but believe it may have something to do with the temperature. It just started showing up in some of the lots. This is something we're going to be working on."

The Cocodrie variety of rice was released by the LSU AgCenter in 1998 - offering characteristics that were not available with other varieties at that time. Until then, another LSU AgCenter variety, Cypress, had been the leading rice planted and was planted on more than 70 percent of Louisiana farms since its release in 1992. "The Wells variety is another high-yielding commercial variety," he said. "This variety is showing 7,937 pounds yielded per acre."

Some of the goals of the LSU AgCenter's Rice Verification Program are to demonstrate the most cost efficient production of rice, develop an economic database for rice production and relay "real world" conditions to researchers in an effort to enhance scientific studies. Ten parishes are chosen to participate in the program each year, said LSU AgCenter rice specialist Dr. Johnny Saichuk. "We try to move around each year," Saichuk said. "Moving around helps us get a better understanding of what affects the rice crop in different areas of the state."

The program started in 1998. Since the beginning of the program, irrigation cost has been the hardest factor to estimate, Saichuk said. "But this is something we're going to be working on," he said.

Dr. Paul Coreil, LSU AgCenter assistant director of environmental issues, said irrigation accounted for 50 percent of groundwater used in Louisiana last year. This was a 13 percent increase since 1995, he said. "About 60 percent of all water taken out of the ground is used for agriculture," Coreil said. "And we think there will be an increased need for water as more acres are being planted. What we're trying to do at the LSU AgCenter is come up with a fair, science-based water policy for Louisiana that looks at the future and what needs may be then."

Agencies work together on Pesticides and Health Brouchure

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry, in cooperation with the Department of Health and Hospitals and the Louisiana Environmental Action Network (LEAN), has produced an educational brochure for Louisiana residents concerning pesticides and health.

Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said the "What You Need to Know About Pesticides & Your Health" brochure is just another example of how agriculture, health and environmental groups can work together in an effort to help safeguard the health and welfare of Louisiana citizens.

"Our office worked with LEAN and Health and Hospitals to publish a brochure that is straightforward, factual and informative," Odom said. "We've got to have pesticides, they're vital in agriculture, so it's important that we all work together to inform the public of how to properly handle them without harming their health or someone else's."

The glossy, full-color brochure contains LDAF's pesticide hotline number as well as information about filing a pesticide incident complaint. The brochure also discusses proper handling techniques, health effects related to pesticide exposure, common types of pesticides and current pesticide laws.

"We ask that anyone who has suffered health effects because of pesticide exposure, please file a complaint as soon as possible with our department," Odom urged. "Our inspectors investigate every complaint and so does Health and Hospitals."

LDAF determines if a misapplication or violation has occurred, causing the health problems, and DHH evaluates the health effects resulting from the exposure. A final report is then sent to the complainant.

"All of the information needed to file a complaint is listed in the new brochure along with phone numbers and addresses for LDAF, DHH and LEAN. We have also added listings for the Louisiana Poison Control Center and the National Pesticide Telecommunications Network. "The main thing we want the citizens of Louisiana to know is that we are all working together to protect their health and well-being," Odom said.

Secretary of the Department of Health and Hospitals David W. Hood added, "We are pleased to join with the Department of Agriculture and Forestry in providing this important health information to the public. This brochure demonstrates how agencies are working together on behalf of the public. “And, as DHH becomes more involved in hazardous chemical and toxic exposure issues, we recognize that education and prevention efforts such as this are the first steps toward keeping people safe.” The new pesticides and health brochure will be available through LDAF, DHH and LEAN. Anyone interested in obtaining multiple copies for church groups, civic organizations or other affiliations can call their local LDAF office or the Baton Rouge office at 225-925-3763.

 Favorite Recipes

Nutty Broccoli Spread
 1 box (10 ounces Bird's Eye Chopped Broccoli
 4 ounces cream cheese
 ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
 1 teaspoon dried basil
 *1 cup chopped pecans
 1 loaf frozen garlic bread
 Preheat oven to 400°. Place broccoli, cream cheese, Parmesan cheese and basil in mixing bowl, food processor or blender; process until ingredients are mixed (do not overmix). Add pecans; process 3 to 5 seconds to blend. Split garlic bread lengthwise. Spread broccoli mixture evenly over cut bread. Bake 10 to 15 minutes or until bread is toasted and broccoli mixture is heated through. Cut into bite-sized pieces; serve hot.

Plantation Shortcake
 *1 slice fully cooked ham (about 1 ounce)
 2½ ounce jar sliced mushrooms
 1 ounce slice process Swiss cheese
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
 ½ teaspoon instant chicken bouillon granules
 dash pepper
 *1 cup milk
 *1 cup frozen diced cooked chicken
 2 cornbread squares or muffins, English muffins or baking powder biscuits

Fresh parsley (optional)
 For sauce, finely chop ham, drain mushrooms and tear cheese slice into pieces, then set aside. In a medium saucepan melt butter or margarine. Stir in the flour, bouillon granules, and pepper. Add milk. Cook and stir over medium-high heat till thickened and bubbly. Stir in cheese until melted. Then stir in ham, mushrooms and frozen chicken and heat through. While sauce is cooking, if serving English muffins, split and toast them. To serve, spoon sauce over the cornbread, English muffins or biscuits. If desired, snip parsley on top. Makes 2 servings.

Italian Tortellini Salad
 2 cups loose-pack frozen mixed broccoli, carrots and cauliflower, or one 9 ounce package frozen artichoke hearts
 4 ounce Provolone cheese or Mozzarella cheese
 2¼ ounce can sliced pitted ripe olives
 4 cups torn mixed salad greens
 1 pint (2 cups) deli marinated tortellini salad
 3½ ounce package slices pepperoni
 ¼ cup grated or finely shredded Parmesan cheese
 Clear Italian dressing (optional)
 Place frozen vegetables in a colander. Run hot water over vegetables just till thawed. Drain well. While vegetables are draining, cut provolone or mozzarella cheese into ½ inch cubes. Drain olives. For salad, in a large salad bowl combine drained vegetables, cheese cubes, olives, salad greens, undrained tortellini salad, pepperoni slices and Parmesan cheese, toss lightly to coat. If necessary, add enough of the Italian dressing to coat. If desired, sprinkle with additional parmesan cheese.

Corned Beef Pockets
 ½ cup frozen peas
 2½ ounce package very thinly sliced corned beef
 *1 cup shredded cabbage
 ½ cup (2 ounces) shredded mozzarella cheese
 ¼ teaspoon Caraway seed
 ¼ cup Thousand Island salad dressing
 2 large pita bread rounds
 Place frozen peas in a colander. Run hot water over peas just till thawed, then drain well. Chop corned beef. In a medium mixing bowl combine peas, corned beef, cabbage and cheese. Stir in caraway seed into Thousand Island dressing, then pour over cabbage mixture. Toss lightly to coat. To serve, cut pita bread rounds crosswise in half, then open pita pockets. Spoon cabbage mixture into pocket.
